The WSFS Business Meetings are in Room 300B of the Convention Center daily at 10AM

WSFS Business Meeting Becomes a New Convention

The WSFS meeting has been extended through next week. Today's meeting will be to determine a brand new agenda for the week of Monday 8/24 through Monday 8/31 and has been branded as its own convention, The World Business of Science Fiction and Fantasy Convention (World BS F&F).

Proposals to be covered will range from:

WB 1.2.3.5 — Arch nemesis mass destruction of your opponent's proposed amendments to the WSFS constitution.

WB 42 — Business is its own Reward Proposal — A new Hugo Category proposed for best WSFS-proposed amendment (covers both long and short form amendments).

Final Updates

Adopt a Space Station Tribble

Too much triticale wheat was shipped to the ISS along with the tribble. All Spokane attendees can now adopt a tribble as part of their souvenir packet. For details on how to get your souvenir tribble, email: IAmNotAKlingon@sasquan.org

NPC Funding

In order to encourage diversity, please sponsor a non-player character (NPC) to attend next year's Worldcon, which will be Midamericon, in Kansas City, Missouri, USA, August 17-21, 2016.

Thanks for Visiting Smoke-CAN

The city of Smoke-CAN would like to thank you for participating in this week-long simulation of the apocalypse. City officials said, "At least now people have heard of us! So far as we know, no other city has had quite this realistic 'end of the world' atmosphere ... not since Pompeii, anyway."

Best Masquerade Quote

Quote from Worldcon Masquerade Emcee, Kevin Roche: "There is no smoking in the theater. Go outside and inhale deeply."

A big thank-you to our webmaster and web team for helping us keep the newsletter site updated, and to Rick Kovalcik for keeping the printers humming! And thank you, Sasquan members, for reading and submitting your content. Until next year!

Future Spokane Worldcon Attractions

For those already planning the bid of the next Spokane Worldcon...

Visit the Alpacas

Moose Meadows Alpaca Ranch offers daily tours from May through September. Small family tours are free. Call in advance to visit. The alpaca ranch is in Athol, ID (unfortunate name for a town!) about an hour from Spokane. (And you know what they say about Athol: It's the "Athol" of America!) Ask for Chick A Pea the alpaca.

Giant British Phone Booth

Vintage red telephone booth that resembles a TARDIS. Oh, and you can get coffee there.

Wake Up Call Address:
210 N Sullivan Rd, Spokane Valley, WA

Directions: Wake Up Call. East side of N. Sullivan Rd
Admission: Free to view.

See more at:

Giant Illuminated Loaf of Bread

The Franz Bakery Building in Spokane, Washington, has a giant, illuminated, rotating, loaf of bread on their roof. It is just like the one in Portland, OR, but looks to rotate much higher. (Portland has lots of restrictions on sign height, unless you are IKEA.)

Milk Bottle Building #2

Good news: the Milk Bottle Building that burned in September 2011 has been rebuilt to its former glory. It is once again a quaint diner. (A little fire doesn't stand a chance against the refreshing power of milk.)

Address: 800 W. Garland Ave., Spokane, WA

Back Yard Fire Lookout Tower and Museum

A museum about fire lookout towers occupies a suburban house, with a real tower standing in the back yard. See more at:

For Your Consideration

The Sasquan Hugo Awards ceremony got a headstart on next year's entry for Best Dramatic Presentation, Short Form contender, Hugo Calisthenics, while the esteemed Robert Silverberg demonstrated his new-found chanting skills with his rendition of the classic Hare Krishna mantra, our redoubtable emcee, David Gerrold, waved his 6 inch diameter wooden disk with robotic laser cut asterick design overhead. Mr. Gerrold implored the nominees to, "Flap their asterisks."

In the background, Tananarive Due, looking very classic Star Trek in Uhura's uniform, performed defensive poses against the Grim Reaper. She was joined by two red-shirts. Fortunately, they only lost one during the trials.

The entire performance ended in an awkward abruptness when the Dalek trundled offstage after announcing, "I must urinate."

Quotes from Hugo Awards

David Gerrold: "Mr. Trump, I want my tribble back."

Less Time to Squander Your Money

The dealers room will close early at 3pm today. In keeping with Worldcon tradition, no attendee can return home with money to spare. So, get down to the dealers room and spend, spend, spend.
